

SD 53 Youth Work in Trades 11A

Workplace Safety Reflection

Assignment Overview:

Workplace safety is crucial, especially for youth entering the trades. Understanding potential hazards, safety procedures, and rights as a worker ensures a safe and productive work environment. After working 120 hours this reflection assignment will help you critically consider workplace safety in the trades and its impact on young workers like yourself.

Instructions:

Write a one-page reflection (approximately 250-300 words) on workplace safety for youth in the trades. Use the following guiding questions to help structure your response:

1. Personal Perspective:

- What does workplace safety mean to you?
- Why is it especially important for youth in the trades?

2. Hazards and Prevention:

- What are some common safety hazards in your trade?
- How can these hazards be prevented or managed?

3. Rights and Responsibilities:

- What are your rights and responsibilities as a young worker in BC?
- How can you advocate for your own safety in the workplace?

4. Real-World Application:

- Have you or someone you know experienced a workplace safety concern? What happened, and what was learned from the experience?

Assessment Criteria:

Your reflection will be assessed on the following:

- Clear and thoughtful response to the guiding questions.
- Use of specific examples or experiences to support your ideas.
- Logical organization, proper grammar, and spelling.
- A strong conclusion that summarizes your key takeaways.

Submission Details:

- Length: No more than one page.
- Due: After completing 120 work based hours

Take this opportunity to reflect on the importance of safety in the trades and how you can contribute to a safer work environment.
